

This is pretty cool, a font in my own handwriting! You can see It's missing some punctuation marks, the word processor substitutes in defaults which look pretty bad, but I'll get around to those. I first started on this way back in 1985 or thereabouts when I was working in Guildford, and learning "METAFONT". But this was done using FontForge and Inkscape, based on what I had left of print-outs of the METAFONT samples.
